Restrictions on UTL Operations

†3775. SHRIMATI MAYA SINGH:
SHRI TARIQ ANWER:

Will the Minister of EXTERNAL AFFAIRS be pleased to state :

(a) whether Government have warned the Government of Nepal that the bilateral economic agreements would be affected adversely if the ban imposed on the Indian Telecom Company 'United Telecom Ltd.' is not withdrawn by it at an early date; and

(b) if so, the reactions of Government of Nepal thereto?

THE MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF EXTERNAL AFFAIRS (SHRI E. AHAMMED): (a) and (b) Following the dismissal of the multi-party government and imposition of emergency in Nepal on February 1, 2005, all telecommunication services in the country were temporarily suspended. Basic telephone services based on landlines, provided by Nepal Telecom, were restored on February 8, 2005. However, United Telecom

†Original notice of the question was received in Hindi.

Ltd 's basic services, based on WLL technology, and mobile services of Nepal Telecom remained suspended.

2. Subsequently, United Telecom Ltd. (UTL) was allowed to resume its services on March 18, 2005 for those customers who had re-registered and had been cleared by His Majesty's Government of Nepal (HMGN). UTL was, however, instructed not to offer new connections and also block services to a number of its customers, including corporate clients. Nepal Telecom's mobile services remain suspended.

3. Government of India is concerned that the restrictions on UTL's operations can affect the financial viability of this Indian joint venture. We have taken up this issue at all appropriate levels in HMGN. We have conveyed to HMGN that inability of UTL, which is one of the largest foreign investments in Nepal, to operate in accordance with its license conditions could undermine confidence of foreign investors, including from India, with attendant implications on fresh investments in Nepal. This, in turn, could also impact on bilateral trade, since Indian joint ventures in Nepal are important contributors to Nepal's foreign trade.

4. HMGN has conveyed to us that the earlier temporary suspension of services and the current restrictions are due to security concerns relating to insurgency in Nepal and has assured that UTL will be in a position to start providing new connections and resuming services to a number of corporate clients within a short time.

(b) and (c) Do not arise.
